Democrats	46%
Republicans	41%

8. When it comes to how the Democratic Party has responded to the first few weeks of Trump's presidency, which comes closest to your view:

The Democratic Party has a good strategy to respond to Trump and it's working	10%
The Democratic Party doesn't have any strategy at all for responding to Trump	40%
The Democratic Party has a strategy to respond to Trump but it's not working	24%
Not sure	26%

9. [blueprint_trump_message_immigration] Below are pairs of statements Democrats have made about immigration. For each pair, say which you find to be the more persuasive reason to elect Democrats as a check on Trump. Even if none of these are persuasive to you, choose the most persuasive:

	TOTAL PERSUASIVE	PREFERENCE EFFECT
[social_security] Donald Trump and Republicans in Congress are already considering cuts to Social Security and Medicare to pay for tax cuts for billionaires. We can't trust Trump to protect Social Security and Medicare.	56%	+6
[chaos] Every day since Donald Trump took office has been chaotic. He froze government spending and then restarted it. He signed executive orders that violated the Constitution and he fired 12 inspector generals. We need stability, not chaos.	55%	+5
[food_price] Donald Trump has done nothing to reduce food prices since taking office. Instead, egg prices have shot up and supermarkets are facing egg shortages. Coffee prices have skyrocketed due to threats of trade war with Columbia.	53%	+3
[brutal_cuts] Donald Trump and Republicans have promised brutal cuts to Medicaid, veterans' benefits, and food stamps, all to cut taxes for the richest Americans.	51%	+1
[doge] Trump has tasked his rich friends like Elon Musk with slashing government programs for healthcare, education, and veterans.	49%	-1
[pharma] Since Trump took office, pharma companies have increased the prices on more than 800 drugs. They know that Trump isn't fighting for the middle class, he's working for the rich.	48%	-2

[jan_6] In his first day in office, Donald Trump pardoned the January 6th insurrectionists, including individuals who were convicted of assaulting police officers. 48% -2

[national_debt] According to projections from the nonpartisan Committee for a Responsible Federal Budget, Trump's plans would add $7.5 trillion to the already soaring national debt. We can't afford Trump's tax cuts for the rich. 48% -2

[china] Days after taking office, Donald Trump walked back his promise to impose tough tariffs on China and allowed for the Chinese company TikTok to keep operating in the United States. Trump isn't tough on China, he's bending to them. 42% -8

10. [blueprint_democrats_direction] Below are pairs of statements about the future of the Democratic Party. For each pair, say which would most persuade you to support Democrats if they went in that direction. Even if none of these are persuasive to you, choose the most persuasive:

	TOTAL PERSUASSIVE	PREFERENCE EFFECT
[back_to_basics] The Democratic Party needs to get back to basics and remember why people support them in the first place. Protecting Social Security and Medicare, reproductive freedom, workers rights, and an economy that works for everyone is popular. If the Democrats focused on those things, instead of minor issues that are less popular, they'd get back on track.	65%	+15
[no_message] No one has any idea what the Democratic Party stands for anymore, other than opposing Donald Trump. Democrats have no message, no plan of their own, and no one knows what they would do if they got back into power. If Democrats ever want to win elections again, people need a clear message from them about what they stand for and what they'll do.	65%	+15
[move_populist] Democrats need to stop being so ideological and get back to being the party of the working class that fights for the little guy against the rich and powerful. If Democrats start standing up for ordinary people again and taking on big banks, big corporations, and billionaires, instead of taking money from all of these people, then they'll start winning again.	61%	+11

[changing_country] America is changing and the Democratic Party needs to get with the program. Being “woke” is no longer popular, and Americans just aren’t willing to see their tax dollars go to DEI programs or fraudulent “foreign aid.” If Democrats wake up and stop defending these things, they’ll have a shot at winning again.

53% +3

[move_center] The Democratic Party has drifted too far left, embracing extreme policies to please radical activists while ignoring what the majority of Americans believe. The Democrats should move back toward the center on cultural and economic issues and get themselves back into the mainstream of American politics if they want people to vote for them again.

53% +3

[no_messengers] The Democratic Party stands for a lot of the right things, but they have no real messengers who can convince people they’re right. Democrats used to have people like Bill Clinton or Barack Obama who could connect with the whole country. Now it just feels like a bunch of half-rate politicians who can’t get their story straight or stay on message.

50% 0

[too_old] Joe Biden was too old to be president, and the rest of the Democratic Party isn’t much better. People like Chuck Schumer and Nancy Pelosi are just too old to be the face of the Democrats, or to put up a real fight against Trump. Democrats need younger leaders and new blood to bring new energy to the party, just like the Republicans have JD Vance or Elon Musk.

[biden_apology] The Democratic Party tried to cover up Joe Biden’s mental decline as president, and lied to the American people about whether he was fit to be president. If they ever want to be taken seriously again, Democrats need to apologize to the American people, acknowledge their mistake, and get rid of the people who covered up Biden’s problems.

[selfish] Too many Democratic politicians seem like they're just in it for themselves. Democrats promise a lot of good things, but they never seem to happen, even when Democrats win elections. Meanwhile, Democratic politicians run for reelection promising to get it done next time, all while they get richer and more powerful. Democrats should try keeping their promises.	47%	-3
[ideologically_narrow] It seems like the Democratic Party spends more time getting people not to vote for them than trying to get people to vote for them. If you don't believe every single thing that the most progressive people in the Democratic Party believe, they call you a racist or a sexist and kick you to the curb. If Democrats don't stop the purity tests they won't stop losing.	42%	-8
[hate_america] The Democratic Party seems like it has a problem with America itself. Democrats like Barack Obama were patriots who loved this country and weren't afraid to say it. But sometimes it feels like today's Democrats hate more about this country than they love. If it were clearer that Democrats are actually rooting for America to succeed, they'd do better.	42%	-8
[small_coalition] It used to be that the Democratic Party represented lots of different kinds of people who shared some common beliefs. Now it seems like they are chasing people away over where they live, how they live, or who they are. If the Democratic politicians stop saying things like "mediocre white boys" they might actually be able to win their votes.	42%	-8
[foreign_policy] The Democratic Party made serious mistakes on foreign policy that made the world less safe, from the disastrous withdrawal from Afghanistan, to the mismanagement of the war in Gaza, to the quagmire in Ukraine. Democrats used to be the party of peace, but they turned into the party of global chaos and violence. If they go back, people will vote for them.	40%	-10

be Republican Lite and embrace the fact that they represent the left wing of American politics, just like Republicans represent the right wing of American politics. 40% -10
When Democrats end their identity crisis and run on actual progressive policy that offers a real alternative to Republicans, they'll start winning again.
