TRUMP SELECTS ELON MUSK AND VIVEK RAMASWAMY TO LEAD DEPARTMENT OF GOVERNMENT EFFICIENCY

In a social media post, President-elect Trump announced that two of his highest profile supporters, Elon Musk and Vivek Ramaswamy, would lead a Department of Government Efficiency (DOGE). He suggested the DOGE would drive “drastic change” by cutting spending and reducing inefficiencies throughout the federal government. He also said their work would be geared toward a deadline of July 4, 2026, making it a “gift to America on the 250th Anniversary of The Declaration of Independence.” The DOGE is not an official government agency and does not have official authorities or responsibilities. It will likely operate as blue-ribbon style commission. At this time, it is unclear how Musk and Ramaswamy will conduct their unofficial audit or recommend any changes to federal spending or operations.

ELON MUSK

Elon Musk is the CEO of electric-vehicle maker Tesla, whose board he joined in 2004. During his two decades there, it has become the world's most valuable car company. Musk is also CEO and founder of SpaceX, and in 2022, he purchased Twitter for $44 billion. Musk is one of the world's wealthiest people and has also launched other ventures including Neuralink, a brain-computer startup, and Boring Co., a tunneling company. More recently he has incorporated a company called X.AI as part of efforts to steer the development of artificial intelligence. Born in Pretoria, South Africa, Musk endorsed President-elect Trump after the assassination attempt on his life in July 2024. Musk created America PAC, personally donating nearly $75 million that supported Trump's campaign.

VIVEK RAMASWAMY

Vivek Ramaswamy, born in Cincinnati to Indian parents, is the founder and CEO of Roivant Sciences, a biotech company, headquartered in New York City. In 2022, Ramaswamy founded Strive, an Ohio-based asset management firm. Ramaswamy holds a bachelor's degree from Harvard and a juris doctor from Yale. Ramaswamy entered the political arena as an outsider in the Republican primary for 2024 presidential election. He suspended his campaign and endorsed President Trump in January 2024 after placing fourth in the Iowa caucuses. Ramaswamy is known for being a critic of environmental, social, and corporate governance initiatives (ESGs) and being a staunch surrogate for Trump on mainstream media.
